

DISABILITY EMPLOYMENT SERVICES

Do you have an employee who is at risk of losing their job because of an injury, disability or health condition?

You may be able to access immediate tailored face-to-face support to help you keep your employee in their job.

Job in Jeopardy Assistance

Job in Jeopardy Assistance is a free program funded by the Australian Government which provides immediate assistance to help someone keep their job. Job in Jeopardy Assistance is delivered through a network of employment services providers that specialise in assisting people with an injury, disability or health condition. An experienced provider will work with you and your employee to help manage the impact that their injury, disability or health condition has on their work, ensuring they can continue working and you can keep a valued employee.

Assistance available through Job in Jeopardy could include:

- a comprehensive workplace assessment
- free workplace modifications or special equipment
- advice about job redesign
- support in the workplace to help manage the impact of the injury, disability or health condition.

Who can apply

To apply for Job in Jeopardy Assistance, your employee must have an injury, disability or health condition which places them at risk of losing their job in the immediate future. The condition does not need to be permanent but the employee must be working at least eight hours a week (not including recently reduced hours due to the impact of their injury, disability or health condition). Other criteria will apply.

How to apply

You can contact your local Disability Employment Services provider to find out if your employee is eligible.
